

Summary

A decorative element comprises a translucent substrate and an image pattern applied thereto. The substrate comprises at least one support surface covered by a translucent adhesive layer and an image layer that contains an image pattern on the side of the adhesive layer away from the substrate. The image layer, including its edges, is entirely covered by a translucent covering layer.

(Fig. 2)